Dear [REDACTED]

It was good to hear from you and I appreciate your offer to the Agency for domestic relocation services. As you are aware, we have agonized over this issue for a number of years and now it looks as though recent legislation will alleviate some out-of-pocket expenses for our employees who relocate domestically. Unfortunately, the General Services Administration is moving with glacial speed in the development of Agency implementing instructions for the Wolf/Warner legislation and until the parameters for relocation services are spelled out we cannot specifically define our requirements.

We are, however, looking at what various relocation firms have to offer in the way of services and the Office of Personnel is the focal point for this activity. Therefore, I suggest that you contact [REDACTED] for general discussion purposes. [REDACTED] along with other concerned support and operating folks, is currently looking at this issue and various courses of action to be taken when we get the green light from GSA and OMB.

Sincerely,

Distribution:
